JOB-WORK OF ALL KINDS
Executed to order, neatly, and on reasonable terms.

It is intended to make the SHELBY SENTINEL a first-class Family Newspaper, Democratic in politics, devoted to General News, Literature, and Morality. To sustain our paper, we naturally expect the assistance and co-operation of the people of Shelby and adjoining counties. While the local interests of this section will not be neglected, we will aim to advance the general prosperity of the State.

The general interests and welfare of this section can in no better way be advanced than through the medium of a newspaper.

Following our attention to all topics of the day, we will treat in permanent perspective to the country and that these views are such as the people of Kentucky naturally and heartily endorse, we shall up and defend them at all times. Firm in the opinion that we can make our paper acceptable, we ask a liberal patronage.

Correspondence on all subjects is respectfully invited. All communications must be accompanied by the names of the writers, not for publication, unless desired, but as a guarantee of good faith and responsibility.

Communications to insure favorable attention should be brief, to the point, and plainly written upon but one side of the paper.

Respected communications cannot be returned.

Announcements of Marriages and Deaths published gratis.

Obituary Notices, Testaments of Respect, etc., will be charged fifty cents for each ten lines; the money to accompany the manuscript.

Parities ordering us to advertise for them in other papers must advance the amount requisite to pay for such advertisement.

Advertisements under the "Special Notice" head will be charged 50 per cent. additional to the above rates.

All transient advertisements, and all advertisements of a distant character.

Yearly advertisements receive the privilege of altering their advertisements quarterly. More frequent changes must be contracted for, otherwise they will be charged 20 cents per square for each change. Collection will be made quarterly.

Selected Poetry

TO MY WIFE.

The following lines were taken by a friend from the desk of a member of Congress from one of the Western States. They are understood to be his reply to a letter from his wife, asking "Do you ever think of me?" The devotion of a true husband to a true wife is here most beautifully described:

When daylight breaks over the craggy east mountain,
And silently strikes on the low cottage door,
And noiselessly lights up the silvery fountain;
When crystal gems sparkle on meadow and moor,
When sweet feathered songsters their morning songs waken;

When the lark from her wings shakes the bright pearls dew,
When the lily's early and humble meal's taking
When morning first blushes—I then think of you.

When the day-god has risen high up in the heaven;
When nature in splendor shines brightly and gay;
When the rays of the sun to all things have given life;
The brilliance of noon-day, the diamond's bright ray;

When the noise of the harvester's sickle is singing;
When the clear-sounding horn calls him homeward in gleam;
When the bright summer sun makes the wild birds come singing;

When the knee seek the shade—then I'm thinking of thee.

When even-tide cometh, and day has less lightness;
When the storm-king is riding supreme on the blast;
When lightning is flashing in coldness and bright-ness;

When labor is o'er, and day closes at last;
When the husbandman's weary from toiling since morning;

When the shadows grow long on the flowery lea;
When the luster of evening the landscape's adorning;
When stars 'gin to twinkle—I'm thinking of thee;

When the pure vault of Heaven, with gems of great beauty,
The moon for their queen, and space for their home,
Reflects the bright sun—each thus doing his duty

In nature's great system in ether's blue dome—
When night has thus settled, in silence and gloom,
On mountain and valley, on land and sea;

When the whole aerial system's repeating its story
Of God's great creation—I'm thinking of thee.

HOE OUT YOUR ROW.

THE youngest son stood with his fair bride upon the threshold of the old farmhouse. He was the last of four brave boys who had gone forth from that humble roof to work their way up manfully to a place of honor and usefulness in the world. Perhaps there was a little dimness in the old man's eye, and may be a little tremor in his voice as he spoke the farewell words. But he took from the old side-cupboard his parting gift; a bright, new hoe—and as he placed it in the hand of the youth, the accompanying admonition sounded cheerily on his ear, "Hoe out your row."

It was the fourth time a similar presentation had been made in the old homestead. "Every body will find his row to hoe in this world, George—and sometimes it's a mighty tough one; but it is only onwards that shirk it. 'Whatever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might, and never forget to look up."

The old man wrung the hand of his son, and stooped down to kiss the cheek of his fair, new daughter; while mother busied herself with the dozen "last things," which every one but a mother forgets. The lingering farewells were all said at last, and the old crowd rolled away with the two hopeful, just entering life's bright and beautiful summer.

The old homestead seemed deserted and drear as a last year's nest. The aged pair sat down by their own hearthstone alone as when they began life together. How these old walls had rung to the sound of childhood's mirth, and childhood's step, and in the later years had echoed with the tread of many feet. Now they must live more in the buried past.

But to George and Ellen life seemed all one bright future, with the rainbow of hope arching all their plans and projects.

Their Western home was an humble one, and plenty of work for willing hands within it. The young farmer's chief capital was his strong arm and stout heart, and the sound working-day principles he had been taught from childhood. Sometimes he grew discouraged at the prospect of paying for the place he worked—but he was sure to meet with hearty encouragement and words of cheer from Ellen; a glance, too, at the parting gift of his father, as it stood on the mantle in the family room, was as good as a sermon any day. There it stood very ready to give encouragement or admonition, as the case might be. Strangers might think it a curious ornament for a chimney-piece, but it was soon regarded as one of the household treasures.

Dust nor rust were never suffered to mar its brightness.

"Ellen, it is no use trying," said George, one evening, quite despondently, as he turned away from some figures he had been making on a scrap of paper, "I can't make out the payment this week, and I may as well give it up."

Ellen looked up cheerfully from her work and nodded toward the mantle.

"I have hoed and hoed, but this row is too much for me. The wool will pay the next installment, and the crops the next; but where this fifty dollars is to come from, I don't know in addition to what I can make out, is more than I can see."

"Sell the cow, George," advised Ellen; "you were offered sixty dollars for her, you know."

"But what can we do for butter, and cream in our coffee, and all that?"

"Do without for a time, dear. A home is a great deal more important to us now than any table luxury. Besides, you say you are almost unwell, if we would fairly hoe out our row."

George, like a sensible man, took his wife's advice; and the satisfaction he felt, as he had paid down the money promptly and took his receipt, far exceeded that which any table enjoyment could afford him.

Ellen ransacked her memory for economical sauces and gravies, to take the place of old Delby's golden butter and yellow cream; and she never forgot to stir a well-beaten egg into the pot of coffee, so improving its richness that George scarcely missed the favorite luxury.

Steadily onward he hoed his row until the place was all his own. The old home had put on a new face out-doors and in.

There were shrubs and rose-bushes in abundance in the once tangled and briar-grown door-yard, and a fine young orchard was blossoming on the sunny slope toward the south.

There were files of agricultural papers on the broad shelf of the little library, and a choice selection of miscellaneous books above them. There were little tasteful appointments here and there, about the cheerful sitting-room, but the bright hoe was never displayed by any gem or crystal.

The pretty shell-framed pictures might look down upon it, if they chose; it could not be looked out of countenance.

George was respected and known by all his neighbors, and the stranger, who he shared but for a night the generous hospitality of his broad hearth-stone, went away to speak, years after, of the pleasant hours he spent there, and the kindly attentions of the gentle wife, whose wide heart took in every suffering, sorrowing one of the earth.

The blessing of the Lord was upon that household, and it is that alone "which maketh rich, and He addeth no sorrow with it."

Years sped away when one ruddy October, a circular photograph letter went round the circle of brothers, bidding them all come to the golden wedding. And the call gathered them in from their distant homes.

There was a racket of merry, youthful voices, as the grandchildren romped through the old halls; but grandfather's face was brimful of smiles; and grandma's pet and namesake, gentle, dignified Grace, took the reins of government into her hands, so all moved on most harmoniously, relieving mothers of all care, and leaving them to chat to their hearts content.

Carrie was the daughter-in-law who lived nearest home, so the care of the feast fell upon her. "Grandma must not stir from her rocking-chair" until all was upon the table. Indeed, it would be hard for her to accomplish much with so many little run-aways under her feet all the time, whose manifold perfections must continually be observed and commented on.

The evening lamp was lighted, and a little fire was burning in the open fireplace, as all were seated in the old homestead.

William, the eldest born, stepped forth from the little group, and advancing to his gray-haired father, said,

"It is twenty-two years since the first of us went forth from this roof to make his way in the world. As each, in return, took his departure, you presented to him a bright, new hoe, with the injunction, 'Hoe out your row.' How well we have followed your directions, and the lessons of industry, perseverance, Christian integrity, and self-denial, you have always taught, by your words and by your life, it remains for you to judge. As a token that we have not forgotten your teachings, in the name of my brothers and myself, I present this hoe to you," and with a bow he laid it down upon the little round stand before him.

The old man dropped his head, and the thin hair fell about his temples as he simply said, with choking voice,

"God bless the boys!"

"Mother," said Ralph, advancing to her side, "we all know that you would not desire any gifts of jewels any golden ornaments, such as are common on these occasions. But we thought the contents of this little box might add some comforts to your lives, which we should delight to bestow, if we were not so widely separated."

He placed in her hands, a beautiful gilt casket, containing four of the broadest pieces the mint turns out, with a liberal sprinkling of smaller yellow drops, from the little grandchildren.

"Now, father," said Dominie Ned, as he walked up to the stand, "I must give you my wedding-present; and he laid before him his beautiful copy of the Testament and Psalms, printed in very large, clear type, so grateful to the failing sight of age. In bright gilt letters on the side, were stamped these words:

"I love Thy commandments above gold; yea, above fine gold."

"Now, perhaps, we had better sing our evening hymn; and after worship, let the little ones tramp off to bed."

The patriarch knelt among his flock, and the prayer, from his full heart, for God's blessings upon them, was as if he had entered within the veil. There were tears on many cheeks when they rose, and a subdued tone ran even in the "good-nights" of the merry children.

Then all drew up about the fire, and told over tales of other days. William told how he had looked out a pretty hard row in the new place, where he had sought to establish himself as a physician. But, after due waiting, the "first patient" came at last, and the second, and so on, until now he was "the old physician" of the place, with two young men in the office with him.

Dominie Ned, (otherwise Rev. Edward Kent,) detailed some of the "Shady Side" experiences of his first charge; but they were pleasantly relieved by the many "Sunny Side" incidents his wife took care to suggest as he went along.

George and Ralph compared farm-notes, and altogether, the evening passed as only such gatherings, by such a hearty-stone, ever can. It is only such training that can produce such results.

If you wish your boys and girls to grow up useful, honorable, and happy, teach them faithful "to hoe out their row."

RESULT OF MEDDLING.—Meddling with others sometimes brings people into scrapes, and thereby one of the elders of a certain church made "bad worse." A young fellow entered the church and took his seat with his hat on. An elder, noticing it, stepped up and requested him to take it off. His request not being complied with he came to the young man a second time, and seeing he still hesitated, the elder gently lifted it off, to his chagrin, out rolled a quart of hickory nuts, making more noise than was consistent with decorum. "Man," quietly said the youth, "see what you have done."

A Baptist church is about to be started in Edgefield, Tenn.

STARTING IN LIFE.—How important it is, if possible, to ascertain something concerning the end as well as the beginning of the critical passages of life. With the best intentions and the utmost care and misadventure are sometimes inevitable but they far often result from lack of consideration. Youths who are just entering upon a business career are, in nineteen cases out of twenty, utterly incompetent to determine for themselves the line for which they are best qualified; nor have those who have authority over them always the requisite judgement, or insight, or patient observation, or even uninterestedness, to guide their choice aright. Sometimes the parents mistake the lad—sometimes the lad disregards the parents; but to whomsoever attributable, whenever an error has been committed at the outset, he is sure to reach a limit beyond which there is for him no hope of further progress in that direction. We meet with the proofs of this every day. A large proportion of failures in life are to be traced to this error of main cause. Owing to whatever influences, young people have been started in a line for which they are totally unfitted; and when they have gone too far to retreat, the discovery is made that there is no egress for them, and that they must stay where they are, and put up, as they best may, with their disappointment. Well will it be for us if the whole line of our march through life does not terminate in a similar disappointment. In this case we shall be able to blame none but ourselves for every precaution has been taken to forewarn us.—N. Y. Day-Book.

TERIBLE SUFFERING.—Yesterday a man came into our office who had passed through an ordeal of the elements, and of savage men, hardly credible in this day of comfort and civilization. He had started from San Francisco on horseback, but upon reaching Sonora was attacked by hostile Apaches, and his horse taken, and himself only escaping with life after a fearful chase of a day's duration. He then, on foot, began his awful march to the eastward, suffering in the terrible cold of the mountains, without shelter or fire; hiding from the Indians here and there, and again pressing on. At Fort Dodge he found the garri-son surrounded by eight hundred lodges of Indians on the war path. Coming still further east, he was overtaken by a terrible storm of ten days' duration, but being fortunate enough to meet a wagon train was thus preserved once more. However, in that train he saw the fearful sight of ninety mules and horses frozen, and the still more dreadful freezing of men and women among the emigrants. At last, after a volume of suffering, this man had reached the settlements, after a journey of

The Election of Congressmen.

We commend the following from the Louisville Courier, to the Democracy as worthy of special attention in view of the approaching election:

Our friends throughout the State cannot be too deeply impressed with the importance of bringing out the entire strength of the party at the election to be held on Saturday, the fourth day of May. The interval between now and that time is short, but with zeal and energy it is quite long enough to secure for our candidates such majorities as we may be proud of.

The accounts from the several Districts are full of encouragement. In the First, the election of Trimble is a certainty. In the Second, our eloquent standard bearer, John Young Brown, is sweeping all before him, and should a full vote be polled, is sure of obtaining a large majority over the combined strength of the Radical and third party candidates. In the Third, Mr. Blakey, representing one wing of the opposition, contests the election with that powerful advocate of truth Judge Hise, and should be rebuked for his presumption by an overwhelming vote. In the Fourth, the fearless advocacy of constitutional principles by J. Proctor Knott deserves, and will obtain the indorsement of a very large majority over his opponents. In the Fifth, all that is necessary to enable Grover, the champion of Democracy, to do the same thing is the bringing out of a full vote. In the Sixth and Seventh Districts, Jones and Beck have no serious opposition, but they are both entitled to large majorities, and should receive them. In the Eighth, there is good reason to believe that Adams will, by proper exertion on the part of his friends, beat his Radical competitor by a handsome majority. In the Ninth, we have similarly flattering prospects for our nominee, Judge Young. By proper exertions our friends will not only secure a full Democratic delegation in Congress, but they can do it by a majority greater in the aggregate than that of Duval. We trust no Democrat in Kentucky will fail to vote on the fourth of May.

J. Proctor Knott.

From the tone of our exchanges it seems that the people are fully alive to the importance of the election soon to transpire in our midst. Our candidate for congress J. Proctor Knott who favored us a short time ago with a visit and a speech, than which no better has been made in our town for years, has proved himself the man for the crisis. Bold, decisive and purely democratic he bears our noble banner aloft with honor to himself and the great party that so cheerfully places him in front as their standard bearer.

So feeble is his opposition that he had not been fully aroused, except to the importance of the occasion and the responsibility he has accepted. Indeed we might say he has no opposition. It is true there is a man by the name of Heady, living in Bullitt, Nelson, or some other county in the District who says he is a candidate, but so seldom is his name mentioned in connection with the race that to be elected, it must be by the voice of spirits from the vasty deep. We have also heard that Col. Marion Taylor was a radical candidate but we have not seen an authorized announcement and do not know positively that he has consented to be a public martyr in this district for the great progressive negro-suffrage military despotism party.

The eloquence and logic of Mr. Knott have made him hosts of admirers in this district and he will be elected undoubtedly by an almost unanimous vote. Vox populi vox dei, and the voice of the people throughout our glorious old Kentucky will speak in thundering tones in May against the maddest schemes of oppression and tyranny that will make the followers of Stevens, Butler, Brownlow and the devil shake with fear, and dreadful forebodings.—Elizabethtown Banner.

Hon. Joe Davis.—We see it stated that an effort is being made by the friends of this gentleman to get his consent to run for the State Senate from Shelby. Mr. Davis would indeed make a good Senator, for as a member of the other House he was industrious and attentive, and some of the most useful legislation of the past session owes its origin to him. He is a sound Democrat, and has never bowed the knee to Baal at any time, but he is nevertheless free from all taint of bigotry and partisanship. We take pleasure in bearing our unqualified testimony to his fitness for the position to which his friends desire to elevate him.—Kentucky Gazette.

The Proposed National Democratic Convention—Should the Call for the Convention be Withdrawn?

At the 22d of February Convention resolutions were introduced providing for a National Democratic Convention to meet in Louisville. We moved to lay the resolutions on the table, which was seconded, if we recollect correctly, by R. J. Breckinridge, Esq., and Maj. B. F. Buckner, and supported by a respectable minority vote. Through the mistake of the reporter this part of the proceedings was omitted in the report, and the resolutions went forth as having passed without opposition and unanimously. The resolutions were passed without reference, under the rule, to a committee, and without that deliberation which we think, the importance of the step demanded.

1st. We opposed the convention then because we believed it not to be a necessity. Under present circumstances we oppose it as unnecessary if not harmful. 2d. We opposed the resolutions because we doubted the authority of our State Convention to make such a call. Such a convention is necessary at this time, since the issues between democracy and radicalism are clearly marked and defined, and the vital principles of our party are clearly and uniformly enunciated by the platforms of the Democracy of the several States. As to the authority, we would say that inasmuch as there is a national organization, and a National Executive Committee, in our humble judgment a State Convention has only the right to recommend, not the right to call a National Convention. The friends of the measure had no design to ignore the authority of the National Committee, but on the contrary, expected the co-operation of that committee, as well as the entire party in the country. Reasons that could be urged on the 22d of February for a National Convention do not now exist, and the National Committee has recently decided to hold no convention until 1868, and some of the State Democratic Conventions have adjourned without taking an action on the subject. Now if we persist in our call do we not place ourselves in antagonism with the existing organization of the party?

Moreover, it must be apparent to every one that if the proposed convention meets on the 4th of July that a large number of States will not be authoritatively represented. Now a National Democratic Convention is an authoritative body, binding in its deliberations on the party, hence it is not all important for the peace and harmony of the party that every State in the Union should be fully represented? But it is suggested, to avoid conflicts, that the convention be turned into a sort of mass meeting. In the first place there is no authority for making such a change, and in the second place no good would result from such a meeting, for the reason that a mass meeting is an irresponsible body and the party would not be bound by its action, yet would be held responsible for everything that any indiscreet and foolish person might say on such an occasion.

The object in making the call, if I understand properly, was to effect a more perfect organization of the party. Can this be effected by a convention in which half of the States are authoritatively represented? Could a mass convention effect this, whose good deliberations could not be considered as emanating from the party, and whose undue and imprudent action would be seized upon by the opposition and used to the party injury? Moreover, the Democratic party is thoroughly organized in all the States, on unconflicting platforms, embodying the vital principles of the party, of which organizations the Connecticut elections is the first fruits. Is it not better, then, at this time, to thus work and labor until 1868, when the party will meet, having before it the history now being made by the Radical party?

It is unnecessary to urge the importance of harmony in the Democratic party at this time. Every one must feel it who knows that the success of Democratic principles is the only hope for constitutional liberty in this country.

Feeling most deeply the great responsibility assumed by our convention in the passage of the resolutions, I venture to suggest to the members of the 22d of February convention, and to Democrats throughout the State, that they immediately communicate to the State Executive Committee their views as to the propriety and expediency of the convention under present circumstances, and to suggest to the Executive Committee to withdraw the call, if they believe from the expressions thus obtained that a majority of the party desire its withdrawal, and I trust that such expressions will be immediately given.

Only the deep interest I feel in the success of Democratic principles could induce me to speak with such boldness as has the appearance of presumption on my part. J. W. DAVIS. SHELBYVILLE Ky., April 12, 1867.

THE Editor of the Democrat, referring to the Democratic and Third-party candidates for the Governorship, says: "They are both exemplars of Kentuckianism—Harding as a frank, honest, candid man, and Helm as the tricky and rather gifted politician." According to our neighbor's account, Kentuckianism must be a rather strange combination of qualities, embracing frankness, honesty, candor, trickery, and genius, a sort of Happy Medium of attributes. This is a brand-new view of the Kentucky character. Our neighbor, we suppose, is authorized to speak for his own candidate, but we cannot admit that the Democratic candidate has any part in exemplifying such a mixture. He is an exemplar of the Kentucky character as it is understood and admired the world over.—Louis Journal.

On Friday, Franklin Hazelwood, an old man and a cripple, and two sons of sixteen and eighteen years old, living near Bedford, Trimble county, Ky., were taken from home by three men with faces blackened, and tied up and whipped with raw hides, their house torn down, furniture broken, and they ordered to leave the country under penalty of death. General Burbank, District Commandant, has sent a detachment of twenty men to the scene of the outrage, to investigate the matter and arrest the guilty parties.

COLUMBIA, April 18. The Governor estimates that there are 100,000 people in South Carolina, who have not tasted meat in thirty days. The destitution is great, and several cases of starvation have been reported.

The registration of voters will be commenced as soon as a sufficient number report themselves, who are qualified to act as registers, but few have done so yet.

The wheat crop along the line of the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, through Middle Tennessee, is looking very well indeed. The rains of the past two weeks have delayed the corn planting.

The Ratification of the Russian Treaty.

At the rate we are going on, the old figure of speech, "that the whole boundless continent is ours," will soon be words of plain and sober fact. Since the Constitution was adopted, we have made the following acquisitions of territory:

1. The purchase of Louisiana and the Mississippi Valley, in 1803, from France, for $15,000,000.

2. The purchase of Florida, in 1819, from Spain, for $3,000,000.

3. The annexation of Texas, in 1845.

4. The purchase of California, New Mexico and Utah, from Mexico, for $15,000,000, in 1848.

5. The purchase of Arizona from Mexico, for $10,000,000, in 1854.

6. The purchase of the immense Russian possessions, running down on the Pacific coast from the North Pole to fifty-four north latitude, at which line it strikes the British possessions.

These extensive flights of the American eagle, from the frigid north down almost to the equator, in the sunny South, are of a character to convince the world that nothing short of the whole Western Continent will content "the universal Yankee Nation." We are in a fair way to realize the joke of the American who, being in Rio Janeiro, the Capitol of Brazil, was asked when he would return home, replied that he was waiting for his country to come to him. This is the first instance of the history of the world that Russia, who has been grasping and avaricious as us for land, ever parted with any territory belonging to her. Perhaps she wants the nice little sum of $7,500,000, which we are to pay her, to fit out her armies in an anticipated European war. That is about the only reason we can imagine that would induce her to sell. This would not be the first time that American money, paid for foreign possessions, has gone in that direction. $15,000,000, which we paid France for the Louisiana purchase, was used by Napoleon I. to fit out that army which conquered the Russians and Austrians at Austerlitz. Having with our money helped France against Russia, it is no more than fair play that a bonus should go to Russia to be used against France.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

HAPPY PARENT.—"Thomson, my son," said a father to a lad in my hearing the other day, "won't you show the gentleman your last composition?" "I don't want to," said he. "I wish you would," responded the father. "I won't," was the reply; "I'll be gay-blamed if I do!"

A sickly, half-approving smile passed over the face of the father, as he said, in explanation of his son's brusquerie, "Tom don't lack manners generally, but the fact is he's got such a cold he's almost a fool!" Kind parent! Happy boy!

THE richest negro in Philadelphia is Steven Stevens, a lumber merchant. He owns seventy-five houses in the city, and is worth not less than $300,000. Harris Lindsey, a bounty-broker during the war, is worth $250,000. There are five artists and a number of musicians that receive distinguished attention. Philadelphia has 28,000 colored people, who support seventeen churches.

Kind words cost nothing. They are the brightest jewels in the crown of life; the ones which never tarnish; the roses which never lose their fragrance; the rainbows which never fade; the springs which keep the heart from breaking as it is tossed against the granite walls of life, strife, toil and wearing labor.

O'Leary, gazing in astonishment upon an elephant in a menagerie asked the keeper, "What kind of beast is that ain't hay with his tail?"

Markets.

On Thursday April 18, by Rev. J.W. Tharp, Mr. Wm. M. HEATON to Miss F. A. CARROLL. For the remembrance of the printers, we thank the happy pair, and wish them long life and happiness.

Good for the health.—one copy of "Tetter's".

Farmers can get the best plows that are made, from Mr. C. W. Burks, who warrants them to give satisfaction in all cases.

Read the Advertisement of Messrs. Berger, Shuts & Co., in another column, headed, "Afflicted, suffer no more."

See the advertisement of Madame E. F. Thornton, the great Astrologist, Clairvoyant and Psychometician.

We are again compelled to omit a large amount of matter, crowded out by the pressure upon our advertising columns.

J. Proctor Knott will meet Col. M. C. Taylor in discussion at Shelbyville to-day. Speaking will begin at 1 o'clock, P. M.

Squirrel Cages.—Nine different styles and five sizes, at Rogers' house, furnishing Emporium, 146, S. S. Market between 4th and 5th Louisville, Ky.

We invite attention to card of Mrs. C. W. Walter, Louisville. Transient customers and regular boarders will find her house to be a pleasant home.

MARRIAGE LICENSE FOR THE WEEK.—W. M. Heaton to F. A. Campbell, S. S. Shelbyville to Mary J. Snider; W. O'Brien to Mary O'Connor; John W. Jansen to Hattie Bach; J. E. Newkirk to Kittie Monfort.

ROGERS' HOUSE, FURNISHING EMPORIUM, 146, S. S. Market between 4th and 5th Louisville Ky. Housekeepers visiting Louisville, will find a splendid assortment of all goods they need.

The special term of the Shelby Equity and Criminal court is now in progress with no cases of interest on trial. The case of Ed. Terrill has been continued.

On last Monday, Judge Joseph P. Force and W. L. Vories, Esq., both Candidates for the Senate in this county, made able and earnest speeches in behalf of Democratic principles.

Rev. E. P. Humphrey will deliver a lecture at the Presbyterian Church this evening at 7 o'clock. Subject—"The Historical value of the Bible." Tickets may be procured at Kreuger & Crapsters and B. B. Ross.

On last Monday, T. O. Shackelford, Master Commissioner, sold 80 acres of land, south of Shelbyville at $50 per acre. Last week, he sold a town lot to Messrs. S. H. Ellingwood and J. W. Goodman for $1000.

MOTH PROOF CEDAR CHESTS.—Ten different sizes and styles, of these splendid articles for putting up winter articles, at Rogers' furnishing Emporium, 146, S. S. Market between 4th and 5th, Louisville, Ky.

Attention is called to the advertisement in another column, of Madame H. A. Perrigo, of Buffalo, N. Y., the great Astrologist and Clairvoyant. Madame P. can be consulted by letter, on all affairs of life, past present and future.

ICE CREAM SALOON.—The most fashionable resort, H. H. S. Saloon, will be open Saturday the 27th, where will be served Ice Cream, Water Ices, and all the delicacies of the season.

Persons wishing Ice Cream &c., sent to their residences in any part of the city can be accommodated on short notice.

We would call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Irvine & Merwin, Lumber Dealers, Cor. Main & Hancock Sts., Louisville Ky. They have a large stock of seasoned Building Lumber, Shingles, Flooring, Doors, Sash &c., on hand. Send your orders and they will receive prompt attention.

Messrs. Clark & Co., Chemists, Syracuse, N. Y., would call attention to their advertisements in another column, headed "Reparator Capilli," "Crisper Coma," and "Circassian Balm." These, undoubtedly, are the most perfect and efficacious articles of the kind ever offered the American Public. To unbelievers, we would say, "try them and be convinced."

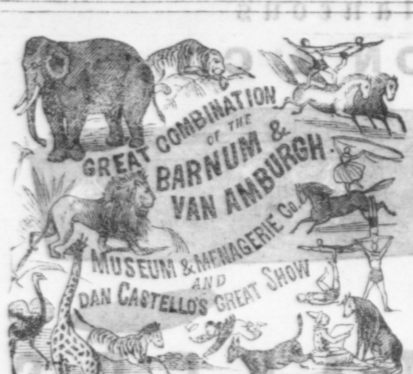

The Deed of trust from the Lou & Frankfort & Lexington & Frankfort Railroad Companies to Norvin Green, has been filed and recorded in the Clerk's office of this county. This deed was made for the benefit of the Lou & Cin. Road now under contract. The transfer amounts to three million dollars; the Revenue Stamps on the deed amounted to three thousand dollars.

Of the many Cosmetics and Toilet Articles, now advertised, but few prove to be what they are represented. Messrs. Berger, Shuts & Co., Chemists, of Troy, N. Y., are advertising extensively several articles that have proved themselves just as represented, for which they are acting as agents. We believe them to be perfectly trustworthy, and that parties using their preparations will find them fully up to the recommendations given. See their advertisement in another column of this paper.

The following transfers of Real Estate were made in Shelby county for the week ending April 22, 1867:

WILL EXHIBIT IN SHELBYVILLE
Monday April 29, '67.

AFTERNOON AND EVENING.
Exhibited under one Immense
Pavilion, for one Price of Admission.

NEVER before in the history of amusements in America has any enterprise of a similar character been inaugurated on so vast and grand a scale as the present combination of BARNUM, VAN AMBURGH & CO., and DAN CASTELLO, who has there ever before been offered for public appreciation and patronage an exhibition which combines such numerous and varied attractions, as which contains so many elements of success, or which promise to afford so large an amount of refined AMUSEMENT AND PLEASURE COMBINED WITH INSTRUCTION.

Before speaking of these in detail, the management desire to direct attention to a feature as novel in conception as it is grand in execution, we refer to our

GRATUITOUS EXHIBITION.
Which characterizes the entire of our establishment in every place.

A Brilliant Street Pageant,
Which for extent, richness, elegance, dazzling effect, gorgeous display, and thrilling interest has never been equaled since the

Triumphal Processions of Ancient Rome! In this grand cavalcade and moving picture will appear a series of the most Elaborately Finished Chariots!

Resplendent in gilding, mirrors, and paintings; gorgeously decorated platform cars; artistically finished cages and dens, containing the whole of the Zoological Collection; the band chariot, of original design and resplendent decoration, called
